Boston, MA. Nixon Peabody LLP is proud to share that Thomson Reuters has recognized 12 of the firm’s attorneys as “Stand-out Lawyers.” Honorees were nominated independently by clients for their exemplary service.

Stand-out Lawyers are nominated as part of Thomson Reuters’ annual Sharplegal study by senior in-house legal counsel in large organizations. These lawyers are recognized for the impact they have on client satisfaction and advocacy, as well as how emerging trends affect their ability to deliver results.

Nixon Peabody attorneys recognized as Stand-out Lawyers come from a variety of practice areas:

- J. William Codinha, Government Investigations & White-Collar Defense
- Laurie Cohen, Healthcare
- John Gatz, Intellectual Property
- Jill Gordon, Healthcare
- Brian Kopp, Corporate
- Lindsay Maleson, Healthcare
- Shahzad Malik, Corporate

- Susanna Mitchell, Affordable Housing & Real Estate
- Joseph Ortego, Complex Disputes
- Harsh Parikh, Healthcare
- Andrew Tripp, Community Development Finance
- Adam Tarosky, Government Investigations & White-Collar Defense

As part of its annual SharpLegal survey, Thomson Reuters asks more than 2,000 senior legal buyers around the world to nominate up to three of the lawyers they have worked with in the past 12 months who stood out to them, and why.
